

The Growth of Restoration Franchises

05/02/2023

Preserving values and sentiments through generations...

Tim Fagan discusses how he went from being captain of his wrestling team at the University of Michigan to serving in Law enforcement for nearly a decade before transitioning to education assuming the role of a High School Wrestling and Football coach in Lake Orion Michigan to a school administrator.

Presented with the opportunity to get into the restoration space following his father's carpet cleaning business he found a passion for being there for people in their worst times and creating order from chaos.

Under Fagan's leadership, the company grew substantially eventually catching the attention of BELFOR in 2010. Fagan then joined the BELFOR team and in 2018 became the President of Blue Kangaroo Packoutz, 1-800 WATER DAMAGE, and 1-800BOARDUP.

As the content restoration industry picks up Blue Kangaroo Packoutz in particular has seen tremendous growth, opening 30 locations in under three months alone.

Tim Fagan shares in his recent interview with Restoration Today that while the space is growing, Blue Kangaroo Packoutz sticks out amongst its competitors because of its offerings as a brand and through its backbone under the BELFOR Franchise Group.

Fagan explains not just as President but as a father and grandfather, "We as a brand align with our franchisee's values and are passionate about our culture which is a strong differentiator amongst all 13 of BELFOR Franchise Group's family of brands."
